Ministerial Training

Calling And Ministry Studies (CAMS) helps the applicants determine if they are called to clergy ministry, as well as providing knowledge about ministry. The spouses will attend the three seminars and will write the papers about their calling and understanding of ministry. The Calling and Ministries Studies is a pre-requisite for the Exhorter's Credentials.

The purposes for Ministerial Internship Program (MIP) are . . .

Give the minister and spouse practical training and experience at the local-church level under the supervision of a pastor.

- Develop the scriptural discipline of submission (Romans 13:1 and Hebrews 13:17)
- Provide commitment between the Church of God and the minister
- Develop in ministers the proper attitudes toward the church, the ministry, fellow ministers, and the people whom they serve
- Assist new ministers in discovering their own talents and styles for evangelistic outreach, pastoral responsibilities, other areas of ministry, and for determining further training needs.
- The MIP program is a pre-requisite for the Ordained Minister Credentials.
